

CAN GET IN JAIL IF HE WANTS TO

Easy Enough if Gourdain
Really Means What He Says.

ALSO CAN PAY MONEY BACK

Postoffice Won't Refuse Mail Containing Checks for His Alleged Dues.

Newspaper men and Government officials who have come into contact with Louis A. Gourdain, the eccentric Chicago broker, have serious doubts as to the sincerity of his alleged efforts to break into the Joliet penitentiary.

Gourdain has a pretty good working knowledge of the law, although he isn't a lawyer.

"A man isn't a lawyer until he has a sheepskin," he said, with that sour smile of his, when asked before he left Washington yesterday how it happened that he was able to draw up his position to the Supreme Court here in such exact form.

Plan Simple Enough.

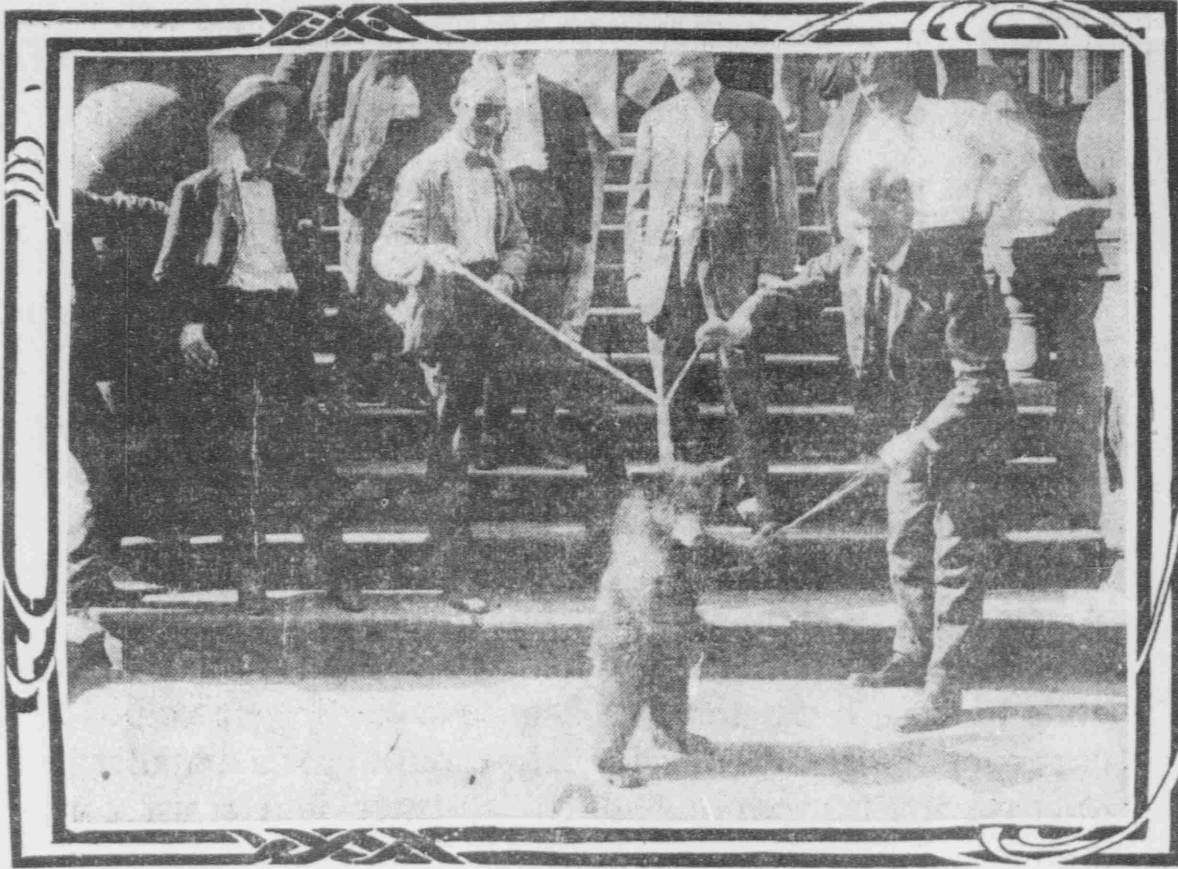

"He is well enough informed," said a Supreme Court lawyer, who attended Gourdain's session in the Supreme Court clerk's office yesterday. "to know that if he wants to go to the penitentiary he can succeed without any blare of trumpets or beating of drums. He does not require the assistance of the Supreme Court. He appeared from the decision of Judge Landis to Judge Grosscup. If he wants Judge Landis' decision to stand, all he has to do is to dismiss the appeal before Judge Grosscup. If he does that he will not be under the necessity of building a pen of his own. The one at Joliet will hospitably receive him."

An official of the Postoffice Department likewise took a threat at him. Gourdain asked for a conference with Postmaster General Cortelyou, at which he stated he would submit a proposition that the fraud order against him be raised, in order that he might be able to make restitution to those who had contributed their savings to his Louisiana oil and real estate scheme. Because his request remained unanswered, Gourdain declared that negotiations on this subject were off.

Can Pay Back Through Mails.

"If he really wants to make restitution," W. O. Weaver, Postmaster General Cortelyou's private secretary, points out, "the fraud order does not stand in the way. The fraud order only prevents the delivery of mail to him. It does not prohibit the acceptance of his mail. He can send out all the checks he wants to if he has the names and addresses of his contributors. He cannot be prevented from sending them money through the registered mails."

Husky Colorado Cinnamon Bear Cub Guest at the Department of Justice

Exercising the Cub Before an Admiring Crowd in Front of the Department of Justice.

Baby Bruin Was Cap- tured in the Mountains Near Durango, Col.

"What shall we give him? Does he eat milk? Has anybody some cake crumbs? Get him some water! Feed him a few peanuts! Do give him cake!"

This was the chorus from a crowd of men and women clerks of the Department of Justice, who greeted a little bear that dropped into the department building on K street yesterday afternoon. He was tired and bored by long confinement in a heavily-barred and thickly-screened cage, and the only thing that proved him a bear was the penetrating odor from his brown hide and hair. He had been sent all the way from Durango, Col., to Chief Clerk O. J. Field, of the Department of Justice. The donor was E. H. Long, of Durango, who hunted with Mr. Field last year in a vain search for bears.

This "Rocky Mountain cinnamon bear cub" arrived amid the wildest excitement of the clerks. Everybody was stirred except the cub. He merely waved himself back and forth in his narrow quarters, his eighty-five pounds falling now and then with a thud against the walls of the prison. All wanted to feed him and water him; but none seemed very anxious to stroke him on the head.

What Mr. Field will do with him is still a matter of some conjecture, but the probability is that he will send the ferocious young animal to the Zoo. In the letter from Mr. Long telling about the cub was the warning that the bear should be kept away from children and that care should be taken from the boy. These warnings struck terror to the hearts of all for a while.

Husky Cub Makes a Hit.

Finally, however, brave souls and strong hands took the bear out of his cage. They led him down the front steps of the Justice building, holding him by the paws and supporting him by an improvised collar and chain. He was followed by half the clerks in the building, and escorted by several of the clerks and employees, Mr. Lord Bruin, as his first experience in the National Capital, trotted nimbly down the steps in the afternoon sunshine, licking out his tongue and moving his head about swiftly, evidently pleased by the release from the prison which had fallen now and then with a thud against the walls of the prison. He walked up and down in front of the building, sometimes on two legs and sometimes on four, with an occasional hop, skip and a jump. Then he was put back in his cage.

And there was no doubt that the little bear had made an immense hit with the clerks—especially the lady clerks.

BLACK HAND AT WORK: POLICE ON THE HUNT

WILKESBARRE, July 19.—The State constabulary stationed in this vicinity have been enlisted to run down the Black Hand. Pauline Wienen was seriously stabbed because he refused to join the Black Hand. Several well-to-do Italian residents of West Side towns have received threatening letters the last few days. Lewis Muske got a letter on Saturday stating that if he did not deposit $1,000 in Ruby's tunnel he would be ground to pieces by the Black Hand. The State police were given the case. Counterfeit money was placed in the tunnel and the constabulary lay in wait for the blackmailers, but they failed to put in an appearance.

tor a Hack Driver—Gave Him the Deuce.

GOT HORSES ON FLOWERS

Agent Didn't Recognize Iowa Statesman in His Back-Date Headgear.

FORT DODGE, Iowa, July 19.—Because he wore a big slouch hat United States Senator J. P. Dolliver was taken for a hack driver today and given a severe reprimand for permitting his team to stand in a spot forbidden by the city ordinances.

Get Yourself a Guardian!

Station Master Forsythe administered the tongue lashing and warned the supposed hack driver that if he did not know more than to let his horses stand in a flower bed he ought to have a guardian appointed.

A New Man, of Course.

Forsythe is a new man and did not know Dolliver.

Senator Dolliver took the matter as a joke and said that the rebuke served him right for wearing his old hat.

POISONED 100 CHICKENS WITH DOSE PARIS GREEN

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Because her neighbors' chickens destroyed her garden patch, Mrs. Fontaine Bonfield, of Eighty-third street and Vance avenue, Elmwood, poisoned an even hundred of the fowls with paris green. Charles Beatty, the man who owned the chickens, reported the matter to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and as a result Mrs. Bonfield was fined $20 and costs by Magistrate Rau.

Mrs. Bonfield started to grow a garden. Mrs. Beatty's 150 fine chickens, who were always hungry, descended in force upon the tender vegetables one morning.

Then Mrs. Bonfield started to feed the flock with paris green, and the best Beatty could do was to round up fifty cacklers at twilight.

BEGINS FIGHT FOR $70,000,000 ESTATE

BOSTON, July 19.—Mrs. J. Samuel Piza, who jumped from a sixth story window of the Hotel Touraine, at midnight last night, died at the city hospital at 6:40 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Piza had been a sufferer from a nervous affliction and a few weeks ago her husband brought her to the New England sanitarium at Melrose.

Yesterday Mr. Piza, who is a commission export merchant, came on from New York to take Mrs. Piza to their home at 10 West Eighty-second street, and arrived with her at the Hotel Touraine about 8 o'clock last evening.

The couple retired at 11 o'clock and just before midnight Mrs. Piza arose and going out into the hall threw herself from the window onto a street, seventy feet below, landing on a glass canopy over the Boylston street entrance of the hotel. She was at once removed to the city hospital, where she died this morning.
